

Gareth Webb

Gareth has taught across the age range from Reception to A Level and is an experienced Senior Leader within the primary sector. He has been commended by Ofsted for his understanding and presentation of data and how its analysis has been used to identify school priorities and secure improvement.

With a passion for assessment and data, Gareth was a practitioner in the DfE and NCTL Beyond Levels research project; investigating and presenting good practice models and solutions to the 'Assessing Without Levels' agenda. He has also worked alongside colleagues from various Teaching School Alliances to support schools nationally in developing their own understanding of 'Life Without Levels' and creating tracking and analysis systems specific to their particular needs.

In 2019, Gareth joined the Educater team following his work as a consultant for School Pupil Tracker Online. He currently divides his time between working across the schools in his Trust to support and develop leadership capacity, working with Educater and also as a freelance School Improvement Consultant. Gareth also supports school leaders across the country through over-subscribed ASP courses and 1:1 support to interpret and understand the range of official data available and together with providing training as part of the NPQ leadership pathways.
